Dear Saurel

The coaching, support, and guidance you have provided to me and my husband, J. Kirby Spivey, over the course of the last six months has been life changing. When Kirby experienced a layoff from his previous company, after twenty years of helping build that company, his confidence was shattered. It didn't matter that he was one of many affected by the layoffs, the fact is that Kirby's identity was deeply engrained with the work he did for that company and his confidence was shaken. The layoff happened at the exact time I stepped into a new career with ITRA Global Atlanta.

Your coaching and support helped both of us set and achieve new professional goals. I have been able to thrive at my new company while offering support to Kirby. Kirby set new goals, started a new podcast, and learned to step into unfamiliar territory with confidence.

This week Kirby accepted an exciting new position with a company he has long held to be the pinnacle in his field. With your coaching, Kirby identified his true "why," regained his confidence, and went after the company he wanted. There is no doubt that Kirby will excel and enjoy his new position while advancing his career to the next level, in large part, because of you.

Every opportunity we have, we talk about our amazing business coach, philanthropist, and friend, Saurel Quatan. It seems right to put it in writing and share it with anyone that may be a little lost or lacking confidence or just needing help to better see their path forward.

With a great deal of gratitude,

Jennifer and J. Kirby Spivey
