

April 24, 2020

RE: Referral Letter for Aaron Morrison, WldFyre Dynmaics

To Whom It May Concern:

My name is Denise Jutze and I work for SBRUS2 Payroll Services. I am excited to share my recent experience with Aaron Morrison of WyldFyre Dynamics. I took advantage of a 30-minute coaching call Aaron offered in the midst of the COVID-19 crisis. My initial inquiry was truly to gain a better understanding of what made Aaron unique in his field and how I could better refer him. However, it did not take long into our call to recognize Aaron's passion and drive to want to help people experience their best life now. To recognize and understand the limiting beliefs that have held them subconsciously captive. It also became glaringly clear that as much as we can benefit from physical adjustments, chiropractic or otherwise, if we are not emotionally aligned, we continue cycles of negative patterns of behavior that cause us to self-sabotage or not achieve our full potential at maximum capacity.

Aaron is an intent listener, not just of the words you are sharing but the tones you share with and body language you communicate. He is a master at challenging you to ask (and answer) critical questions that allow us to recognize and remove limiting beliefs. It was in these series of questions that I recognized some areas that have allowed subconscious boundaries. After speaking with Aaron, I am better recognizing those pre-programmed triggers and replacing them with a new paradigm. I understand it is a work in progress however it was an enlightening experience.

If you have struggled to break through the "ceilings" in your life, I would encourage you to take the time to reach out and meet with Aaron. You will be empowered to not just break negative cycles but implement the right habits with a new found freedom, liberty and zeal for your passions and purposes.

Sincerely,

Denise Harris-Jutze