Re: Sandals Vacation

Dear John,

I am blessed to have a business that can allow me business travels across the country. When I take these travels I always attempt to add on a couple of days, so I can visit other local areas to enjoy our stay. My wife Sheila pointed out that there is a problem to this grand design of traveling. She pointed out that there is not a true disconnect from my company when we travel and create these semi business / personal vacations.

So, we reached out to Cruise Planners following one of your fabulous information minutes on an all-inclusive resort. The Sandals resort in the Exuma Bahamas where of all things you could swim with pigs in the Caribbean Ocean. Typically, pigs cannot swim, they drown. I went home and told Sheila of this and the next day we booked our long overdue vacation.

It has been about seven years since we took such a vacation to where I was totally and truly disconnected from my company and I could truly relax. I had forgotten what a great feeling that could be. I now look forward to our awesome cruise this October, so I can repeat the disconnect and relax.

Thanks John,

Gordy Powell
