Damon,

When Shari and I purchased our 50-year-old home in East Cobb, we knew there would be projects, repairs, and occasional surprises waiting for us. While I enjoy tackling some things myself, I've also learned there are times when experience and expertise matter.

That's why Damon Grimaldi at Handyworx has become the first person we call when something falls outside my knowledge, skill set, or comfort level.

Over the years, Damon has completed a variety of repairs and improvements in our home, and every project has been handled with professionalism, attention to detail, and craftsmanship that reflects his decades of experience in the construction trades.

Most recently, while working on an unrelated project, Damon pointed out that our water heater was approaching 20 years old, something even our home inspector had missed. Damon wasn't looking for additional work. Instead, he wanted to help us avoid the inconvenience, expense, and potential water damage that could occur if the unit failed unexpectedly.

That simple act reinforced what I've come to appreciate most about Damon: he genuinely looks out for his clients' best interests.

Whether the project is large or small, Damon consistently delivers exceptional work at a fair price. Just as important, I trust his advice and know he'll always be honest about what needs attention and what can wait.

I highly recommend Damon Grimaldi and Handyworx to anyone looking for a dependable, experienced handyman.

With gratitude and appreciation,

Tom Martin
