Building my website with Elliott was my first experience creating a website from the ground up, and I honestly couldn't have asked for a better guide through the process.

I came into the project with a clear vision of how I wanted my practice to feel, but not necessarily how to translate that into a website. Elliott was incredibly patient, responsive, and generous with his time as I asked what was probably an excessive number of questions. He always took the time to explain his reasoning and helped me make informed decisions along the way.

What I appreciated most was how collaborative the experience was. Elliott genuinely listened to my ideas while also challenging me when he thought there was a better approach. He did a great job capturing all three branches of my movement practice in a way that feels calm, welcoming, and professional while presenting information in a way that feels unique to my practice.

He found creative solutions to things I hadn't thought of. When I mentioned that many of my clients are older adults and might benefit from larger text, he suggested an accessibility button that allows visitors to choose the font size that's most comfortable for them.

Elliott also made sure the website was built with a strong SEO foundation. His knowledge of SEO is just one of the many strengths he brings to the table. He even convinced me to start a blog! As someone who doesn't love writing, that was no small feat. Once he explained how blogging can help people find my practice, I was on board.

I'm genuinely excited to share my website with people. It feels like an authentic extension of both my practice and who I am, and something I'm proud to send clients, colleagues, and referral partners to.

I'm looking forward to our next meeting, when Elliott will teach me how to use WordPress and the most effective and efficient way to blog. Rather than just handing me a finished website, he's giving me the knowledge and tools to keep it successful long after it launches.

I would absolutely recommend Elliott to anyone looking for someone who is knowledgeable, collaborative, patient, and genuinely invested in creating a website that reflects both you and your business.
