Dear Laura:

It isn't easy to sell a piece of property for a family member in the best of times, and it's especially difficult when the property has been seriously neglected.

It isn't easy to anticipate the anomalies that arise when the property has been owned for 50 years.

It isn't easy to work with investors who are anxious, buyer's agents who are more anxious, and attorneys who don't look at the file until one hour before closing.

It isn't easy to solve problems from another state, while theoretically on vacation, as the closing window ticks down toward a holiday weekend.

And yet, you did all those things when you helped me sell my aunt's home. You met and conquered each hurdle in our path and you did it with calm competence and a much needed sense of humor. My faith in you never wavered.

Thank you for taking such good care of me, and by extension, such good care of my aunt. I can't wait for the next chance to refer you.

Warmest regards,

Jill Pullen
