Dear Craig,

Life is full of transitions. How we handle them can have a great impact on our lives. Having someone to help you through them can greatly reduce the amount of stress associated with those transitions. Thank goodness I met you.

As you know, I was transitioning from the corporate world to the world of full-time self employment. That in itself is a scary transition. Our family was very concerned about the effects and costs on our health insurance and premiums. I knew we would not be able to afford the COBRA premiums we were quoted and had no idea where to go for help. Then, thanks to PowerCore, I met you.

You explained the differences in the types of insurance coverage that made sense to the lay person, as well as the pluses and minuses associated with each one. You also made it clear that some of our family members may not have been able to get other coverage, and of course, you were right.

Even though we still have one family member on the COBRA policy, we were still able to save over $1000.00 a month. That's almost a mortgage payment. What a blessing.

Your explanations, understanding, and expert advice made dealing with that part of a major transition in our lives so much less stressful. You are a credit to your profession, and I thank you.

Sincerely,

Jon M. LaMonte
