From my first visit to the Brookhaven Team PowerCore meeting, Ben Ragin stood out. He immediately grabbed my attention because he made personal lines of insurance easy, reasonable, and he was happy to talk about it. He explained the insurance industry in a way that I could digest and enjoy.

Fast forward 3 months later, I became one of his clients. Ben never tried to sell to me in any of our PowerCore meetings; he never tried to sell to me when I inquired about Haven Insurance Group and its services; and he never tried to sell to me when I told him I was ready to switch from my current insurance to Haven Insurance Group. Ben is not a salesman, he's a friend who has your best interests in mind and in heart.

As Ben gained more information about my husband and me, the more he was able to assess our needs. He presented options that were best for us that did not cost an arm and a leg. His knowledge of insurance made our switch painless. My family and I are confident in his service and his company. We went from having multiple insurance companies cover many of our needs to Ben suggesting one for all of our needs with lower payments and more coverage!

If you are looking for someone to take the lead or even walk with you hand in hand with your insurance needs, Ben is the person for you. You will be his number one priority and he will continue to check in with you throughout the process. You will feel more confident when Ben has handled your insurance needs.

I recommend Ben without reservation!
