Dear Dr. Cynthia,

I am so happy I want to share it out loud! Twenty-five years ago, I had extreme feet pain while walking. I was diagnosed with Morton's neuromas by a doctor of podiatric medicine and was to have surgery to remove them. As I was being prepped for surgery, a pregnancy test revealed I was pregnant, and I had to put the surgery on hold. Since then, I have dealt with the pain with every step I have taken, but too busy to consider surgery again. I started seriously hiking 2 years ago and felt like the pain in my feet would keep me from finishing hikes. I finished only with the help of Advil, sometimes double or triple dosing for the pain. I sought not only chiropractic care elsewhere, but also worked with a physical trainer to help me find a way through the pain. Neither could help me.

Last Friday I made my first appointment with you. I went in because my knee was hurting, and I was to begin training for a 30 mile one-day hike. After going through your detailed symptom sheet together, the magic began to happen. You spent nearly an hour with me, after asking if I had the time. You began testing muscle strength in my legs and adjusted virtually every spot on my body, including areas I have never had adjusted. Your style of adjustment was heavenly as it seemed to be mixed with massage therapy. Afterward, you asked me to walk down the hall to see how I felt. I came back and said my knee felt great. Then you asked me how my feet felt....oh, my, I don't allow myself to think about my feet. But, since you asked, they were pain free!

Yesterday, I hiked 8 miles at Sweetwater Creek; it was my first hike in 6 months. I had Advil with me ready to take if my pain came back bad enough. The pain NEVER came back! This morning, after rolling out of bed, my feet and my whole body felt great. I cannot thank or praise you enough for your knowledge, ability, and care!

Sincerest thanks,

Lynn Spencer
