I recommend Jeff Bartholomew of Everest Business Coaching...

When I met Jeff, I was immediately impressed with his presence, humor, communication skills, and content. He shared sales tips at an event which I applied to my business immediately. Intrigued at what else I could learn from him; I attended a 3-month Entrepreneurial Growth Program which he led. I was matched with other business leaders in different industries; and realized that he was not teaching me how to be a better Mortgage Lender, but rather a better “Businessperson”. He dealt out nuggets of truths as we learned principles, concepts, and performed exercises that were applicable to our individual businesses. Since that class, Jeff has provided encouragement and business connections. He is a valuable part of my business team, and I suggest you invite him to assist you.

Over the years, I have collected degrees, certifications, attended countless conferences, seminars, and training classes; as well as read many business and leadership books. I am sure all have been of benefit; but a business coach is personal, relevant, and surgical. With a fresh view and understanding of business; adjustments can be made to radically change your efficiency, profitability, influence, culture, and your future. For a business coach, I recommend Jeff Bartholomew of Everest Business Coaching.

Sincerely,
Ray Evans
