Dear Mr. LaMonte,

Being comfortable is often taken for granted until we are not. When we were experiencing uncomfortable temperatures in our home, we contacted you to conduct an energy audit.

We were surprised at how many different areas of our home were the cause of unwanted air exchange. The photos you took to document your findings were informative and often surprising since you climbed in areas we had never seen. You educated us on a variety of building codes and reasons for the temperature discrepancies.

You carefully pointed out and explained the most economical steps we could take for improving the comfort in our home year round. We took your advice and saw a reduction in our energy bills the very next month.

Thank you for your professionalism. Thank you for saving us time and money. We will be sending others to The Energy Guy.

Sincerely,

Richard and Gloria Snyder
