Dear Richard:

As you are aware, I am going through the process of setting up my new consulting business and have been working on my website. To personalize it and represent the kinds of interactions that will take place as I consult, I needed some help. Since I had already met with you there and set up my business mailing address with Intelligent Office in Roswell, I knew that your office building, the interior spaces, and your staff presented a very sharp, modern, and professional image. It seemed the perfect place to do my website photography.

Not only did you and your team welcome me and my photographer for the first round of photos, but you happily welcomed us back for Round Two. On both visits, you personally took time out of your day to accommodate our creative requests and collaborate with me in these photos.

Such partnership wasn't on the list of services that I signed up for with Intelligent Office. But your care and consideration for me and my business, as a customer and as a fellow Power Core team member, demonstrated your genuine commitment to customer service and support. You helped me out Richard, and I appreciate every bit of that. Hopefully soon, everyone will get a chance to see your smiling "customer" face on sklord.com.

All my best,

Kirk Lord
