Real Estate as a profession has always benefited by exceptional photography highlighting the very best aspects of the craft, especially listings. Like many other fields, it is continuing to change and now professional videos are almost a must. In the age of cell phones, everyone feels like they are the worlds next great photographer. Yet, a wise decision is made when any company decides to take it over the top with a professional.

Recently the Wessels Realty Team came to that conclusion and asked Muldrow Marketing to produce a personal interview. We have since used their video services to introduce individual listings. We have also employed their drone services because anyone in the industry understands the importance of having a licensed drone pilot. All these videos have brought praise from leaders in our industry.

It is my pleasure to recommend Muldrow Marketing to anyone wanting to propel their company in the very best light. Of course, their company provides many other marketing services, but one can rest assured that they do an excellent job in this area.

Best Regards,
