As a designer I work in several different design fields: graphics, products, video, and most commonly web design. In each of these fields it is great to have a team or consultant to work with that can specialize and answer the hard questions. For my clients, that expert is Jason Wade.

I started working with Jason over 2 years ago and haven't looked back. Jason allows me to manage my client's websites along with their design work. Not only creating another stream of income, but also making those projects easier for me from start to finish, handling all of the more technical issues I have less of an interest in.

Recently, I was able to take a vacation for the first time in over a year. On day 1, one of my website clients sent me a panicked email that their website wasn't working. All I did was forward the email to Jason, and continued enjoying my time off. I had the peace of mind knowing he would have no issues resolving the problem in a professional and timely manner, which he did.

A website is more than just a URL. Jason knows it, I know it, and my clients know it. I thank Jason for all of the great work he has done for me and my clients over the past few years.
