

To Whom It May Concern,

I once wrote to Cheryl Suber, a closing attorney whom I have learned to trust, thanking her for referring to Mr. Louis Agudo, an excellent home inspector.

My husband and I required Mr. Agudo's service as Ms. Suber said, "I know Louis Agudo personally, owner of Home Sweet Home Inspection Services and he has a great reputation around the community."

As we used his service twice within a month as two home inspections were required for us within that time period, he receives the absolute highest marks for his professionalism and expertise in home inspection. He encouraged us to be there with him while he was conducting home inspections. He seems to love what he does and it shows. Not only that, but also he was a great educator: He explained to us about building materials and home safety issues, how to maintain home, structural/ design issues, if any, as he was formerly a home builder himself. As much as we hope to close our current contract now, we would require his service once again if required and recommend him to anyone for his professional service.
