

Life Balance Power

April 8, 2013

Susan Fraley
Keller Williams Realty

Dear Susan,

I want you to know how thoroughly pleased I am about my new home. I wake up and come down the stairs with the morning sun in my living and dining room. It gets better as the day goes by because the evening sun fills up the family room and kitchen. My son has his play space in the basement. Lots of space inside and an open feel in the front and back yard. Neighbors are friendly in a stable community.

I am truly grateful to be in my new home. Thank You. I had been looking for a house for over two years. Every morning, I woke up and searched the internet for a good deal. I was checking the square footage, number of bedrooms, the square footage and type of house. Basically, I kept my options open.

One Saturday, you were different. You had come prepared with listings and showed me a variety of homes. You watched how my body reacted to each house. You said, 'Let the house speak to you'. You watched my body's response and knew what I wanted. It just so happens that day was the day I found my home. When I walked in, I decided this is my home and that is the home I am living in today.

With all the technology, research and time that I invested, it took one wise and prepared agent to find my perfect home. I could have bought a house with all my criteria, but I don't think it would have given me the "I am home" feeling that I get every time I walk in the front door.

With Gratitude,
Archana Patel