My parents have lived in the same house in Roswell for over 20 years. Needless to say, some things around the house have needed repairing/upgrading over time and on this year they finally got around to the back deck. They love entertaining outdoors and they knew they would have a lot of family coming into town in September for my wedding. As soon as I knew they were looking to replace and upgrade their deck I told them I have the guy for the job.

This is where Jim came in. He scheduled some time with my parents to go out and take a look at the scope of the project and a few weeks later had a firm quote for the deck rebuild. My parents had gotten a few other quotes and Jim was very competitive on price but what really set him apart was the setting of expectations and the communication he provided throughout the project. The end result exceeded my parents' expectations and by September they had an amazing new space to entertain the wedding guests.

Now a few months later, my parents are still thrilled with their new deck and happy to show it off any chance they get. I would recommend Jim to anyone looking into remodeling/adding onto their home because he takes the time to educate his customers on the process and what to expect and goes the extra mile to ensure they're happy with the end result.

Sincerely,
