Dear Valerie,

In the beginning of 2017, my fiancé and I decided we were tired of renting an apartment and ready to take the leap to buying a home. We knew generally what we were looking for and where; the only problem was this was our first home purchase, so beyond just finding the right home we really needed someone to help guide us through the whole process. This is where Valerie stepped in.

Valerie was extremely helpful in explaining each step to us and what to expect next, and as new questions came up she was always there to answer them. My fiancé and I had a vacation out of the country that we had planned far in advance, but it just happened to fall a few weeks before our closing. During this time we had limited internet access so we weren't able to effectively coordinate with our home inspector at a critical time. However, Valerie handled all of this for us while we were gone, coordinating with the home inspector to make sure everything at the house was in order and ready for our closing when we returned.

We have since closed and could not be happier with our new home. Valerie went above and beyond for us to make our first home purchase as smooth as possible and I would strongly recommend her to anyone looking for a home who wants someone to not just help find the right home, but to be on your side throughout the whole process.

Sincerely,
