Re: Endorsement Letter

Dear Scott:

Please accept this letter as a token of my heart-felt thanks for the superior accounting services you are providing my solo law practice. This is also an unqualified endorsement of your professional services to others who may need a CPA, but worry about the expense or finding someone they can trust to give honest, accurate advice.

Working for years in a mid-size law practice, I relied on my firm's accounting staff to handle the books/tax side of the business. After forming my own firm in 2012, I tried for four years to manage my own books and prepare my own tax returns, but it was clearly an area I was ill-prepared to tackle. The depth of your knowledge of the tax code is extraordinary. But it is your patience and clarity in answering financial questions and walking me through the process that has vastly reduced my anxieties about the book-keeping process –it is not as intimidating as it was. You have taken time to help me better anticipate opportunities to save money and understand how to plan for and take advantage of the arcane IRS rules and regulations. And your fees are very reasonable, especially considering the mountains of time I previously lost trying to do things myself. Not only have I been spared that headache, I am confident that having your services will help me achieve and manage higher revenues in the years to come. Retaining you as my CPA is an investment in the future, and like most good investments, I only wish I had done it years ago.

It is a huge comfort to know that I am in good hands, receiving the sound, reliable accounting advice I need to focus on my profession rather than trying to do yours, too.

Thank you very much, Scott.

Very truly yours,

Ann Grier
