Howard is one of the longest standing members of my Powercore team and a wealth of knowledge. From the moment I stepped onto the team, he was welcoming and reached out immediately to get to know me.

Over the course of my first year, I learned more about Howard's business through weekly team meetings, seven minute presentations and coffee outside of the team. It became increasingly apparent that Howard is not only a wealth of knowledge about Powercore, but also in his business of providing life insurance, disability insurance and other protective policies to safeguard a family's financial assets.

When it became time for me to take a new policy to protect my husband in the event of my death, Howard was my first and only choice. He navigated through a very complicated scenario and ended up finding a policy that not only fit my needs, he made suggestions that better covered my family at a lower cost than what I was expecting (so much better, I took out a policy that was three times the amount I initially requested).

If you are considering a life insurance policy or have a client who needs one, Howard should absolutely be your first call!
