To the Future Client of Eleanor Thompson:

A law firm who commissioned to paint a few paintings for referral sources in the past, had recently hired one of the most brilliant and talented directors to operate a department of the law firm.

There was one BIG problem: the new hire's first few months at the firm were very embarrassing—for the firm—because the employee in the firm responsible for ordering her business cards and other items she'd need as a new employee, did not follow through, to say the least.

By the time another employee of the firm contacted me to ask for resources and advice, this coveted hire had already been employed for four months— her business cards had only just arrived, and her information was incorrect.

My first instinct was to call Eleanor Thompson, who answered right away. I explained the situation to her, and within minutes she'd created a new design of the business cards needed. As soon as I received the firm's and new hire's approval, no edits needed (!) (they all loved it) Eleanor said that they'd arrive within a week.

I cannot name another company that is able to deliver that level of personable and customized service and that quickly, I don't care how much you're willing to spend.

Shortly after, I received texts from the previously distressed and embarrassed employees of the firm asking how I was able to create such a quick turnaround with amazing and beautiful results! "I'm just lucky that I've met an amazing person, Eleanor Thompson, in this lifetime, and that is really it," was all I could say.

Thank you, Eleanor, for making me look credible and dependable as a creative resource. Several people trust me, because of you. And that is beneficial for my reputation, and my business.

Sincerely,

Amanda W. Hamilton
