Dear Dr. Henry,

This is not the first endorsement I've written you. The experience chronicled in the previous one made me confident you were who I needed this time.

I am not an athlete. And, I am a realist.

While I don't use my body for sports, of any kind, I do require physical strength and stamina. I have to stand, I have to sit, I have to walk – and I prefer to do these things without thinking about them. Which is why I've been a weekly regular for strength training for more than five years. A computer graphs my strength like this:

You gave me very thorough attention, muscle tested extensively, answered my questions, and gave me two exercises, neither onerous. Results the next week:

I'm so proud!

And so grateful to you,
